Key Risks

6. What are the key risks associated with this product ?

Market risk	Market risk arises due to fluctuations in market values of investments. Such fluctuations occur because of factors that affect the entire market. Market risk cannot be eliminated by diversification. It stems from the fact that there are economy-wide perils which threaten all businesses. Hence investors will be exposed to market uncertainties, and no matter how many securities are held, fluctuations in the economy, political and social environment will affect the market price of the investments.
Credit/Default risk	Credit or default risk is a concern for fixed income instruments. The risk arises when an issuer is unable to service any income payments or pay the principal amount upon redemption. In such cases, investors may suffer significant capital losses with respect to their capital invested and income foregone. The management of credit risk is largely accounted for by the Fund's management of issue-specific risk. This refers to the emphasis on credit analysis conducted to determine issuer's or guarantor's ability to service promised payments.

Interest rate or price risk	All fixed income investors are exposed to interest rate risk. Changes in the level of interest rates will cause demand for sukuk to change inversely. This risk can largely be eliminated by holding the instruments until maturity, thereby locking in price and yields. However, whether the Fund will hold any instrument until maturity will depend on the actual and expected changes in interest rates. The Fund also manages interest rate risk by considering each instrument's sensitivity to interest changes as measured by its duration. When interest rates are expected to increase, the Fund would switch to instruments with lower duration that are less sensitive to interest rate changes.
Liquidity risk	Liquidity risk is the risk that the instrument invested in cannot be readily sold and converted into cash. This can occur when trading volume for the instrument is low and / or when there is a lack of demand for the instrument. In managing the liquidity risk, the Fund will employ liquidity or 'volume traded' analysis on primary and secondary markets for all the instrument types. Where applicable, the Fund will look into the historical volume transacted for the instruments in question. Thereafter, the appropriate asset allocation can be made for each security/instrument with regard to reducing liquidity to a comfortable level in relation to that security/instrument's risk return profile. Liquidity risk is managed by the Fund's credit selection and diversification policies.
